DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

J. E. WHITTAKER,
FOR SUFF. OF SCHOOLS,
Z. H. SHULTZ,
FOR REPRESENTATIVE,
T. J. SMITH.

The post-office at Waller will be discontinued after October 31st.

JAMES E. WHITTAKER is in making a splendid fight for the position of State Senator from this District. He is thoroughly capable and is worthy the support of every man. Vote for him.

More than $14,000 for roads, and no roads. Such is the absurd situation Ohio county has occupied for a hundred years under our anticipated road system. Let us have a change.

MR. PIRTLE'S unsigned circular has little to say against the Republicans, but he proceeds to undertake to punish the Democrats heavily. Some months ago he was hoping that there would be some misguided Democrats vote for him. He has evidently given that up.

THE COUNTY COURT of Butler county has appropriated $500 for the purchase of tools for use upon the public roads. Now let her choose a competent man for Supervisor and supplement the fund thus appropriated by a tax of sufficient size to build and keep a good system of public highways. It will be an investment the will never regret.

JUDGE C. W. MASSIE moved his family to Owensboro Saturday, and will in the future live there. Thus has Hartford added another talented and learned lawyer to the Owensboro bar and a courteous and refined gentleman to Owensboro society. Our neighboring little city will find Judge Massie a valuable addition to her already long list of good men.

DEMOCRATS should remember that the election this year is by secret ballot. The Democratic emblem will be the rooster, as heretofore, and the process of voting will be the same which became familiar to our voters last year. Do not fail to go to the polls and help swell the majority for Whittaker, Smith and Shultz. The election occurs November 7th.

A. W. LITTLE, who killed John son at Kansas City, Kan., and who is well known here, being a brother of Judge L. P. Little, was released on $15,000 bail at Olathe, Kan., Saturday night. His case had been taken there on a change of venue. His friends say he acted in self-defense and will be acquitted, which his many Kentucky friends hope is true.

The Butler County Republicans is reminded that nothing is proven by calling gentlemen ugly names. There is a story of some young people who tried this with rather bad success upon a citizen whose capillary supply was somewhat diminutive, and many young fellows with quite as bad manners since their time ought to have profited by their example.

SMALL effort is being made to win by any of the local candidates except Whittaker, Smith and Shultz. The opposition is listless and hopeless. The people have already made up their minds that these men are competent and in earnest in their desire to serve the people. They will do to trust the people have said it. Vote for them and see if they are not the men to make good public servants.

THE WORST of the World's Fair, in that it is over we will be burdened for the next hundred years by all sorts of documentary evidence that "Pius Porker's Pickling Powder" took the highest award at the Columbian Exposition at Chicago, 1893," and that "Darius Dikins' Death Destroyer was given the only gold medal at the World's Columbian Exposition," etc., etc., and so on, ad absurdum. Such is now the thorn which is sprouting on the rose up by the lake.

CANDIDATE F. W. PIRTLE, who is making a mighty poor fight in the open, has turned to guerrilla warfare and is flooding the country with an anonymous circular, denouncing the Democratic party and filled with a volume of misstatements and falsehoods to which he had not the hardihood to sign his name. The truth is, Bro. Pirtle knows mighty little of the temper and spirit of Ohio county's people if he thinks they are amount from the $4,775 paid the road and bridge commissioners to the state. Fully four-fifths of the entire white population immigrated to the Indian territory during the opening of Oklahoma for settlement.

"reform" ticket to draw $2,700 for a year's sitting around the Capitol. It won't go, Uncle Fred. The people are onto you and your party, and they are going to send a capable, earnest, manly man to represent them who when elected will be not only willing but able to do something. That man is T. J. Smith.

CARDS are out announcing the marriage of Mr. W. L. Sloane to Miss Mary Lumpkin, the ceremony to take place in the Christian church in Owenses on the afternoon of November 2. Miss Lumpkin is a niece to Hon. W. T. Ellis and is a most lovely girl who has endeared herself to a host of friends. Mr. Sloane is a member of the Woburn Job Prinzing Co., and is a very engaging man of splendid business attainments, sociable and popular with all, and will be no less a noble husband than he is a respected gentleman.

GAMBLING.

There are probably no vice which this is so little palliation or excuse as that is for gambling, and in view of some recent developments in Hartford, THE HERALD has a few words upon this subject.

The man who takes a sandbag and awaits in a dark place the approach of his victim and then hits him in the back and rifles his pockets for their contents, is no more a criminal than is the man who sits habitually at the gaming table and by arts that are never honorable and often villainous, flakes from the fool on the other side money for which he gives no return. The man who uses the sandbag displays at least an element of courage which the gentleman (^{who}) sit behind closed doors and rob some innocent crappie to satiate his greed, is no such an enemy to society as the man who sits habitually at the gaming table and by arts that are never honorable and often villainous, flakes from the fool on the other side money for which he gives no return.

In those days the jury's duty was only to fix the guilt and the punishment.

There is yet in effect many of the customs pertaining to courts of justice and among these was the tradition that the jury should be of men who could not be swayed by the arguments of the defense and the witness directing the "jury to come before the Judge of the Ohio Circuit Court at the time he was in session, and to give him a full and frank statement of their views and the findings of the court.

How like man who "lives with a fool or fights with a crappie!"

The bill for which the party is now contending, and to which it stands pledged is for the repeal of one clause only of the Sherman Silver Law. Under the clause was sought to be repealed was never a dollar of silver coin, but the effect of it was to stop the coining of silver and leave it in the vaults at Washington, where millions of dollars now remain unclaimed as the result of this law. The Sherman Purchase Law forces the Government to buy a certain quantity of silver each month, which it then turns over to the Treasury and kept there in silence. It is this and this alone that the Democratic party is attempting to repeal. It was but "a cowardly makeshift" from the first, and no man save the man who has silver bullion to sell, can find any reason why it should not be repealed.

What a spectacle is the country now, contending with which it stands away with the money of some other men in their pockets, and how sublimely contemptible is the specimen who again and again sits down to be fleeced by those who will resort to any means to rob him. Talk of honest men being good and honest men being bad, and the whole world is in shambles.

It is this and this alone that the Democratic party is attempting to repeal.

This is the simple truth of it, and the gentleman who accuses the party now in power of attempting to in any way militate against silver as money, utterly that which is wholly untrue.

UNDER ADVISEMENT.

Dave Smith, of LaRue county, is not as handsome as some other gentlemen who will be in the race, nor is he as old a hand at politics, but when it comes to a head full of information and a ready tongue which never spoke so well as the defense of the right and which can round chargeing a period as from Brandenburg to Greensburg, the gentleman from LaRue is not to be overlooked.

The Courier Journal says:

Stan. Dr. D. S. Smith, of Hopedale, is in the city and is registered at the W. M. Hotel. It is practically settled that he will run for Congress from the fourth district, now represented by Mr. Montgomery, and that he will be a strong candidate for making the race," said Mr. Smith last evening. "I have yet made a formal announcement, but I will do so before the race will be on and there is the district looking into the views of the people, and have the question of my candidacy decided."

There is a righteous law and a healthy public sentiment against gambling and one of these days before long will be an explosion in this town that will astonish some people. We are sick. The community is sick. The churches here might vomit up a carcass or two which they have been sheltering a great length of time.

Hartford is a decent town. The people here are in the main honest and decent people, and we mean what we say when we come to the point of voting to put the right man in office.

Stan. Dr. D. S. Smith, of Hopedale, is in the city and is registered at the W. M. Hotel.

It is practically settled that he will run for Congress from the fourth district, now represented by Mr. Montgomery, and that he will be a strong candidate for making the race," said Mr. Smith last evening. "I have yet made a formal announcement, but I will do so before the race will be on and there is the district looking into the views of the people, and have the question of my candidacy decided."

With this view we have given.

For years we have insisted that our present system was not only folly, and it requires but the thought of a moment to see the truth of this position. At last the Legislature has done something to ward the desirable end of providing our people better highways. It now remains for the fiscal court to do its duty and we begin looking to ward a solution of the problem.

We shall not attempt here to touch the higher reasons—supported as they are by all the arguments for civilization, morality and religion—why we should have a different road system, but we will do so by presenting the lowest view of the question—that of the financial considerations involved.

By the aid of deputy clerk, A. D. Taylor, we have gone over the appropriations made by this county during the year for roads and the results are suggestive at least.

No extensive improvements of any kind have been made on the roads during the year and the amounts expended are perhaps below the average yearly outlay, but they are large enough for what they bring to.

Without giving the itemized account, which is long and varies in the road, my splendid photographic gallery permanently at my new home in Beaver Falls, Ky., where I am fully equipped for all kinds of portrait and graphic work. The Daviess school board, and friends and family, made the bride a most delightful and one never to be forgotten. The Goodloe family is very hard and highly esteemed, and their home is a model of refinement and beauty.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 25.

AN INDIAN WIND SONG.

The softness of the Indian wind still lingers on the pale. When we hear his hoot in the ghostly drifts And all the night we huddle and sleep. And the flames burn low when his steps are heard. And the dim hot rocks with his grave cold.

The dawn of the wind of the spring is shy, Her light feet rustle the soft, white grass. The patterning rain has her pass. And the whispering we can't understand. While we whisper, she has bared her arms And the earth awakes with a thrill of words. And the sun's heat rocks with his grave cold.

The hawk of the summer wind is proud; His crests brighten the horizon of the sun. While the sun's heat rocks with his grave cold.

And the scorching glance of his gaze.

Adventure falls on the shores of death.

When a searching shadow sways along.

The breath of the wind is slow;

But the wind he starts in his dreams.

When the hand of the winter wind draw.

The last rally in the gold warms beams. While the rocking birds to the westward fly.

THE SLIPPERY TRICK.

This varnished dancing pump was slips off the foot of the dancing master at the ballroom of one of the leading salons of Paris. My eminent correct responder did not turn it over to me, but noted at once that the lack of balance, traced by my exquisite young man. Let him among you who does not adore a dandy, try it.

Ladies Latourraine—that is my ex-quite young man's name—was not only a perfect dancer, he possessed not only two, but three very remarkable hands, whereby the adroitness was manifested in all his movements. Indeed, the most expert dancer would have been ashamed to have it for a pupil.

Perhapse, rather than the spoiled pettied dancing, he had a love for life, and made that fact known to the malady that often gives success.

The object of his education was the young man's wife, who was the only one in his husband's rank that restrains me from mentioning the disparity of their ages. This was the reason why his wife, which is only another proof that they truly do not rejoice from day to day in their love. It is traditional in these parts that a woman should be jealous, but jealous, if General Pascoal was not so.

Trusting in the loyalty of his young wife, he cherished no illusions. He enjoyed many a Paul Boyer farce with his wife, and sides moreover, which was impudent, perhaps—but he also escorted her to balls, never pleading any excuse, and always ready for her till after the cotillion, and to all appearances his wife was quite contented.

Perhaps she was so. But there were plenty of young fellows who would look down on my friend's high superiority of birth, and, however, I could not express such an idea and then follow it up.

The general was not to be laughed at. He knew his danger, not only before all the world had seen it, but before any one else had seen it, and he was more like a man of intelligence—which indeed he could not be, for he was a fool.

He had the hands of a young man, the brilliant slipper of the exquisite young man.

I have said that the affair took place in the midst of a reception. Dancing was going on in the larger rooms. The general was dancing in the smaller of the tables, in a small room, adding to the one set out with card tables. He happened to glance carelessly toward the players, and saw his wife in the center of the room.

"Yes," said he, "there is a young man with her, and she looks very well."

"The general was not to be laughed at. He knew his danger, not only before all the world had seen it, but before any one else had seen it, and he was more like a man of intelligence—which indeed he could not be, for he was a fool.

mencing the remarkable jig executed by the general, a few moments later, when he had to stop, and the band struck up again, laughing outright, which they had not dared to do the first time. And the matress of the house, who had been keeping so long, and wondering how much longer her escort would keep her, was now compelled to leave, and go to those of their hosts.

Our young man positively had to get out of the room, and he remained some time in the garden, and then, delighted applause and cries of "It's a trick! It's a come trick!" he came back, and the ladies folk gave him a warm smile and clapped.

"See, you a good ear for music? Well, I don't know. I never tried to play myself."

The County Board cannot issue certificates to applicants for schools of less than 15 years of age.

Many a young man is here before him, and the mischief of it is that it so often stays there.

"Don't you think that Blowing acts like he feels oats this evening?"

"Well, no. It has more than appeared. See, he's got a good face for music."

As he escaped the lady through the doorway, he called to the others, "I'm going to do so, and with the back of his hand, he knocked the pocket of a pocket of a pocket of a pocket, which he contained the slipper. There was nothing there! He tried to sound the other pocket, but a slight noise made him stop. He turned the half of the arm nearest the general made any attempt at exploration impossible.

P.—"Hire a competent teacher, and send him to school with the whole neighborhood in full bus and cry at his heels."

A little boy once asked a little girl, "What's the difference between nightingales and canaries?" The girl replied: "Why, don't you know I am a swan and the other says 'amen'?"

Everybody had crowded to the window to see what the result of the experiment was.

"—to the head of the room, the general wanted to try the other pocket. Here was a new object to him, and he was about to repeat his action when he heard a voice from his pocket, "I am not your one else ever knew." He was eating crushed sugar, objecting to white lump because, as he said, it was bad for the teeth, and he could not be pleased with the taste of the sugar, which was nothing else but animal refuse.

"I explained to him that he was quite right, and the other, one of which was white lump was not made from glucose and the other that glucose was a product of cane sugar, and he was satisfied with the result, and he was about to repeat his action when he heard a voice from his pocket, "I am not your one else ever knew."

"—to the head of the room, the general wanted to try the other pocket. Here was a new object to him, and he was about to repeat his action when he heard a voice from his pocket, "I am not your one else ever knew."

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for group. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the best qualities of a medicine. The cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases where the children have been cured of the disease by the use of the medicine. Little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy."

"It is a good medicine, and should be prescribed for him."

EDUCATIONAL COLUMN.

BY W. L. RAWLINS.

Coal was first used as fuel in 1834. Give and take in good things, especially give.

The man made typewriter friend waiting so long, and wondering how much longer his escort would keep her.

Our young man positively had to get out of it, but only with one shot.

"Isn't it funny to notice how the 'Don't You Know?' man misses being found?

Have you a good ear for music? Well, I don't know. I never tried to play my typewriter.
